SCOUTS ARRIVE AT OKLAHOMA CITY

A. R. Sugg held a phone conversation with T. O. Collins this morning. He stated that the scouts arrived at Oklahoma City Thursday afternoon at 7 o'clock, still in fine spirits and enjoying the hike immensely. Today and Saturday they will be entertained in the metropolis and expect to return home on the evening Katy Saturday.

FALLING BRICK GAVE

NEGRO HEADACHE

Washington, May 29.—William Moore, a negro, was annoyed by a headache today when physicians expected he would have been occupying space in the morgue. He stopped a brick yesterday after it had fallen ten stories and was traveling with the velocity of a cannon ball. When it hit Moore on the top of his head it broke into bits. Moore sat down suddenly and apparently was a subject for the coroner.

Workmen on the building from which the brick dropped sent for a physician. Before the doctor arrived Moore sat up.

"What'd ye want do dat fer?" he demanded angrily of a workman who was bending over to catch the supposedly dying man's last words.

Examination of Moore today revealed no serious injury.

Freight Service on Arkansas River.

Muskogee, Ok., May 28.—Regular freight service on the Arkansas River between Muskogee and Fort Smith has been re-established by J. H. Harmon, owner of the "City of Muskogee." The boat will carry cargoes of freight during the week and be used as an excursion boat on Sundays.

A trade extension trip by the Muskogee Commercial Club will be made down the river the later part of the week.

VETERANS DIE AT CHATTANOOGA

DRAMATIC CLOSE OF TWENTY-THIRD REUNION OF CONFEDERATE VETERANS.

Chattanooga, Tenn., May 29.—With flags furled and kits packed, many survivors of the Southern army who attended the twenty-third annual United Confederate Veterans reunion here, departed for their homes Thursday night.

Death stalked in the midst of the cheering throng which Thursday participated in the impressive veterans' parade. Three aged soldiers who came to renew campaign friendships made during the war between the states, responded for the last time to their regimental calls.

Robert Nolen, a veteran from Houston, Texas, fell down the steps of the city auditorium and sustained a broken neck.

D. F. Moore, of Fuqua, Texas, who was injured in a fall Wednesday, died at a local hospital Thursday. G. W. Mullinix of Londale, Ga., entered a restaurant just after the veterans' parade was ended, and dropped dead. Several veterans were exhausted by the trying ordeal of Thursday's march but at a late hour no additional deaths had been reported.

Scenes Thursday night at the railroad stations brought tears to eyes of thousands of visitors who were returning to their homes after attending the reunion. Aged soldiers, when parting, clasped each other in warm embrace and uttered fervent prayers that they would meet again at the next reunion. Many were so feeble that they could scarcely clamber aboard the trains, but willing hands were ready to assist them.

The climax of the reunion came Thursday when several thousand veterans marched and rode through the city streets in their annual parade, accompanied by sponsors and escorted by national guardsmen from several states.

General Bennett H. Young, of Louisville, Ky., commander-in-chief of the United Confederate Veterans, led the parade. Upon reaching his headquarters, he dismounted and standing bare-headed in the sunshine, watched the survivors of the confederate army pass by. Member's of General Young's staff, Governor Hooper, Miss Kate Daffen of Austin, sponsor for the south, and others were guests of General Young, on the reviewing stand.

A picturesque feature of the parade was the presence of several negro "uncles" who followed their masters through the war between the states. A number carried live chickens, illustrative of the manner in which they foraged when food was scarce during the fierce campaigns. They were heartily cheered by the spectators.

Proudly bearing tattered flags, dimmed by powder smoke and time the gray clad survivors of the confederate army marched through streets walled on each side with cheering thousands. Standards borne today by cavalrymen almost encountered overhead arches formed of entwined confederate and United States flags.

Nearly a thousand of the gray haired veterans were mounted on the prancing horses of the Eleventh United States cavalry tendered by Fort Oglethorpe officials and offer another mute testimonial of the burial of the bitterness which characterized the war between the states.

FARMERS UNION ADOPTS OFFICIAL PAPER

Hon. Wm. A. Bowen, of Arlington, Texas, editor of Farmer's Fireside Bulletin, the official paper of the Farmer's Union of Texas and of Louisiana, and which paper has been adopted by the state officials of Oklahoma as the official paper of the Farmer's Union of this state, has been in Ada the past two days consulting with State President O. W. Taylor, State Secretary J. O. Butler, State Lecturer and Organizer W. F. Belden, and Secretary J. W. Baker of the executive committee, with regard to having a most liberal contract signed up so as to make the Farmers Fireside Bulletin conduct a wide campaign in behalf of the Farmers Union and of all farmers in Oklahoma. This contract has been signed by the above gentlemen and will be submitted to the members of the advisory board not present, three members, for their signatures.

BALKAN WAR MAY CLOSE TODAY

London, May 29.—The treaty of peace between the Balkan allies and Turkey, which will be known as the peace of London, will be signed at noon tomorrow at St. James Palace, unless some unexpected hitch occurs. Servia has followed Greece in reluctant orders to her delegates to sign. Turkey and Bulgaria indicated their willingness some time ago and it is as sum Montenegro will sign.

Greece held out for the addition of a protocol until the last moment, when she was assured by Turkey that all conventions prevailing before the war would resume their effectiveness until an opportunity was given to discuss the points at issue.

The protocol which Greece wanted appended to the treaty embodied reservations by the allies on points yet to be discussed with the Powers, such as the financial post-bellum settlement, the fate of the Aegean Islands and the frontiers of Albania.

Bulgaria and Turkey refused absolutely to have anything to do with a protocol, the former regarding it as too likely to open fresh and undesirable discussions, the latter as betraying a lack of deference to the Powers.

While the peace of London may end the war with Turkey, it may be the signal for strife among the Allies. The speech of the Servian Premier in the Parliament at Belgrade Wednesday, when he explained that Servia desired a modification of the treaty with Bulgaria regarding the division of territory, has increased irritation to such an extent that it is not likely no what his meeting with Premier Guechoff of Bulgaria on the frontier will take place.

All efforts of Russia to bring about peace between Bulgaria and Servia apparently have failed and the worst is feared. Meanwhile the allies are throwing enormous bodies of troops

THREE GAMES WITH ARDMORE NEXT WEEK

Manager Bobbitt of the Ada Elks has arranged for a series of three games with Ardmore to be played on the normal grounds Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday of next week. The Ardmore bunch has a reputation for being swift ones, and the Elks evidently have their work cut out for them.

I Wonder Why?
A bachelor may safely tarry
Till sixty-odd, then up and marry
A little thing of twenty-two
'Tis right and proper so to do.
Disparity of ages?

Pooh!

A maid till thirty-odd may wait
To wed a young of twenty-eight.
Now hear the folks begin to guy!
Just listen to the hue and cry:
Disparity of ages—

Fie!
I wonder why?

The Big Tent Theatre All Next Week.

The amusement lovers are talking about the Dubinsky Bros. Stock Company which will open a week's engagement Monday in their new big waterproof tent located on main street same place as last season.

The popularity of this attraction is to well known for comment, suffice to say, that dandy pair Mr. Ed Dubinsky and Miss Irene Daniel who head the company will be seen to adventure Monday night in their presentation of Bertha Clay's famous and well known story of "Thorns and Orange Blossoms." While there are many new faces with the company this season all of the old favorites have been retained. The plays this season are all new and varied including some of the latest New York successes. There will be a Coterie of vaudeville between the acts each night which does away with any waits.

As an extra added attraction Dubinsky Bros. have specially engaged Biehl's famous ladies orchestra which will offer a high class and popular musical program each evening 30 minutes before the rise of the curtain.

Admission will be 10 and 15 cents with a few reserved at 10c extra.

Will Drill at Durant.

Durant, Okla., May 30.—A movement has been started here to organize a local company with a capital stock of $10,000 to bore for oil here. It is proposed to drill a minimum depth of 2,000 feet. Some of the leading citizens who are organizing the company have faith that there is an abundance of oil and gas beneath the surface here.

New Parcel Post Will Require Thousands More Employees

The United States Civil Service will require the appointment of approximately 35,000 employees during the coming year.

The opportunities for positions in the Civil Service were never better.

Civil Service positions are desirable because the hours for work are not too long, salaries are good and certain, and promotions are frequent.

The greater number of appointments will be made in the Post-Office Service, paying from $600 to $1,700 and more per year; the R. F. D. Service, paying $1,100 per year to standard routes; and the Railway Mail Service, paying from 900 to $1,800 per year.

If you are an American over 18 years old and can read and write you can make sure of appointment to one of these positions by study of an I. C. S. Civil Service Course.

Just mark and mail the coupon below and we will send you booklet giving names of I. C. S. students who are now holding Civil Service positions at good pay. We will also tell you how you, too, can enter this most pleasant and profitable employment.

Pleasant work—good salaries—positions for life.

Minnesota Has Plan to Suppress Vice

St. Paul, Minn., May 30.—The Wallace-Fosseen law, enacted by the Minnesota legislature with a view to suppressing disorderly and gambling resorts by preventing the use of property for improper purposes, came into effect today. The law has several unique features. Under its provisions any citizen may begin a civil action to abate a nuisance, the resorts being classed as nuisances. Any attorney may prosecute the action, which will be brought in the name of the state. If the court finds that the charges are true an order will be issued closing the property for one year confiscating the household goods in the places and ordering their sale, and fining the property owner $300. Under the law the property owner is presumed to be aware of the purpose to which the property is being put. The attorney prosecuting the case, if successful, is to be given 10 per cent of the fines and the amount realized from the sale of goods. To guard against an abuse of the law it is provided that the court, if convinced that an action is being brought in bad faith, may dismiss the case and assess the costs against the citizen who brought it.

PROVISIONS OF NEW SCHOOL CODE

Oklahoma City, Ok., May 29.—Approximately $1,000,000 annually will be the reduction in school operation by reason of the new code adopted during the special session and recently approved by Gov. Cruce, is the opinion of State Superintendent Wilson and State Senator Fred E. Tucker, chairman of the educational committee under whose direction the code was prepared. This is the first bringing together of all the school regulations in a single act since statehood, and it required considerable labor on the part of its compilers and the joint educational committees of the legislature. One of Senator Tucker's most favored ideas, which was stricken from the bill, was that where the school term was four months or less, teachers should be required to conduct a school session on Saturdays.

Features of Code.

Leading features of the new code, which will become effective ninety days after the legislature adjourns, are as follows:

Abolishes office of school district treasurer in common school districts.

Makes the county superintendent the purchasing agent for school officers' records, teachers' registers and records and provides means for paying for the same.

Abolishes the assistant in the office of county superintendent in all counties of less than 15,000 population; counties of over 15,000 and less than 25,000 are limited to $200 per year, and counties over 25,000 and less than 40,000 are limited to $400 for clerk hire. Counties with population of over 40,000 may have clerk for the entire year at $50 per month.

Provides for minimum salary of $1-200 for county superintendent and maximum salary of $1,800 with traveling expenses not to exceed two visits to each school each year.

Provides that school district boards must have monthly meetings to approve bill against the district, and no account shall be paid until acted upon by the board in regular session.

District boards may contract with and employ teachers after March 1 for the following school year.

The county treasurer is made the custodian of the school district funds. This will result in a saving of at least $500,000 each year to the teachers of the state by preventing the discontinuing of teachers' warrants.

Incorporated towns maintaining a four years' high school accredited with the State University will be governed by the same laws as cities of the first class.

Members of school boards in cities of the first class are to be nominated from the respective wards, but elected by the city at large for a term of four years. Cities with a population of less than 50,000 elect only one member from each ward and outlying territory, and cities of over 50,000 elect two members from each ward, not to exceed five wards.

City superintendents may be elected for a term of years not to exceed three.

Provides for a complete and systematic method of taking the scholastic census.

The county normals may be dispensed with and teachers training

SYNOPSIS

CHAPTER I.—Gloria Kerr, a motherless girl who has spent most of her life at Belmont, comes to her father's home in Chicago. David Kerr is the political boss of the town and is anxious to prevent his daughter learning of his real character.

CHAPTER II.—Kendall, representing the Chicago packers, is negotiating with Judge Gilbert, Kerr's chief adviser, for a valuable franchise. They fear the opposition of Joe Wright, editor of the reform paper.

CHAPTER III.—Kerr asks the assistance of Judge Gilbert in introducing Gloria to Belmont society and promises to help him put through the packers' franchise and let him have all the graft.

CHAPTER VII.

Gloria plunged into the work of managing over Locust Lawn according to her own ideas with her usual enthusiasm. Accompanied by Mrs. Gilbert, she haunted the architect's office, carrying with her magazines containing pictures and descriptions of beautiful homes. When the plans for the alterations were finally approved, David Kerr learned with a sigh of relief that the changes could be made without driving him from the shelter of his own roof.

At the same time Gloria was planning for the changes in the country place she and Mrs. Gilbert were also busy preparing for the ball which would serve as her formal introduction to Belmont society. Her time was so engaged that she thought the suggestion of her hostess an excellent one when Mrs. Gilbert said that it might be better not to become tangled up with too many social engagements at a time when it was more vital to see that the Locust Lawn alterations were properly under way. The girl was aware, from what she had heard her father and others say, that things were dull at present, and she did not wish to spur them into a premature activity. When the ball was given for her it would be time enough to begin.

Mrs. Gilbert was not letting things drift, although the daughter of David Kerr was not aware of it. Every one in Belmont knew what Gloria did not: That she was about to make a great effort to secure recognition. Belmont was not in a receptive mood. Its first thought was that she was the child of a shrewd political trickster who had fattened at the expense of the town. The offspring of the leopard should not hope to be without spots.

Mrs. Gilbert was clever enough to have girls to luncheon whom she thought might become interested in Gloria. They came, and in the majority of cases surprised Gloria by their charming manners and their beautiful clothes. Her court was to be even more brilliant than she had dreamed. The girls were invited one at a time, to give both Gloria and the visitor the opportunity of becoming well acquainted.

The luncheon guests came to call afterward, but by a strange mischance it was always when Gloria was not at home. She would go to the architect's office with Mrs. Gilbert, and would find on her return that several cards had been left for her. The ball was so near that she made no attempt to pay any calls herself. She was too busy.

Although railing at the fate which took him away most of the time, the first three weeks after Gloria's removal to town were spent by Judge Gilbert in Chicago. Occasionally he ran over for a day, but even then his wife and their guest saw little of him.

This would have made their evenings hang heavy on their hands had it not been for Joe Wright. He got into the habit of dropping in after dinner every evening and several times a week Mrs. Gilbert had him to dine with them.

Late in the afternoon he and Gloria often drove together, the season of the year keeping them most of the time on the city streets.

Once he drove with her to Locust Lawn, but as it was late when they reached there he did not get out, sitting in the runabout while Gloria ran into the house for a few minutes.

Neither Wright nor Gloria ever made an effort to direct the conversation into the intimate channel it had taken the night they first had met in Belmont. One might almost have thought they had agreed to consider themselves merely good friends, so impersonal were they in what they said.

For this there was reason; rather, there were two reasons, his and hers.

Wright was keeping a firm grip on himself because he knew the truth and was afraid. Gloria was self-possessed and would not have permitted him to pass the border of friendship, had he dared, because she wished to know Belmont well. Even a hint of an entangling alliance would prove a hindrance. Thus it was that each was happy in the other's company. And if perchance they looked the sentiment that each had inwardly resolved not to breathe, they were happier still in the thought that some day their dreams would come true.

The paper was occasioning Wright no great anxiety. Somewhat to his surprise the advertising revenue was showing most gratifying gains caused by the increase of local business.

The Banner had more advertising, but the new owner of the afternoon paper had no cause to complain.

Even his advertising manager could not explain it.

Main street merchants who had been out of the paper for years began to send in copy without solicitation.

This made the head of the advertising department think that the millennium was about due.

The real reason, unknown to every one except the merchants receiving the message, was that Dave Kerr had sent out the tip for them to throw some of their patronage to the News.

This was a shrewd move on the part of Kerr. He wanted Wright to have such a volume of business that if he should order all the advertising he could influence cut off, the paper would be instantly crippled.

If the News had not much business, then anything Kerr might cause to be dropped out would only show that his power was slight.

If he had to strike a blow he could instantly cripple it.

wanted it to be with a sledge hammer. Another important consideration which led him to take this step was that the merchants might believe, and he tipped it off in a manner which would be most apt to make them jump to that conclusion, that he was himself interested in the News. This would tend to minimize Wright's influence if he should attempt a crusade, since the public would wink and say: "It's all a bluff, old man Kerr himself is interested in the paper."

The boss even calculated that this would be strengthened by the frequency with which Wright was seen in his daughter's company. He was not looking for trouble, he never welcomed it, but he sought always to be prepared when it came.

During her first weeks at Mrs. Gilbert's Gloria saw little of her father. She had at first frequently dropped in at his office, but he had intimated that it was no place for her. Sometimes she would be at Locust Lawn when Tom brought him home in the afternoon. When Judge Gilbert was home from Chicago once he dined with them. Every day, however, she talked to him for some time over the telephone. He always seemed interested, apologized for not seeing her more, and let her rattle on until she had quite exhausted the news of the day. Occasionally he complained to her of his rheumatism—no one had ever heard him speak of it before—and she would beg him to take good care of himself, since it was with him that she wished to dance first at her ball.

There was one girl whom Mrs. Gilbert sought as a friend for Gloria. She mentioned it to her husband the first day their guest arrived, and he suggested that she be invited to lunch the next day. Accordingly Mrs. Gilbert telephoned Miss Laura Piper and asked her. For the following day, however, Miss Piper had an engagement. When several other days were mentioned she had engagements for those also. Could she have been made to accept Gloria, the task of conquering Belmont would instantly become less arduous. Her father was head of the great Piper Mining company, and her family was looked upon as one of the most exclusive in the whole state. If Laura Piper would, she could make it extremely pleasant for Gloria. But Laura Piper had her own way and her family's ideas about the Kerr breed, no matter how nice Gloria might be, she was still her father's daughter.

Mrs. Gilbert reported her lack of success to her husband on his return from his first trip to Chicago, and he mentioned it, almost casually, to David Kerr when they met the next day. The boss inquired the particulars, but made no comment. That he was not unmindful of the episode developed two days later when the Piper Coal company received a complaint from the secretary of the school board that there was an undue quantity of slate in the last coal furnished the public schools. While worrying with this, the company's legal department sent word to the president that the city solicitor had just notified the company that one of the important spurs into an up-town coal yard crossed a street without authority of law.

Old man Piper swore by all the gods in mythology that it was the worst outrage ever perpetrated upon him in all his business life. He had but a day or two to catch his breath before Mrs. Gilbert telephoned at the dinner hour asking Laura to luncheon the next day. The whole thing dawned on him when Laura flounced back from the telephone and announced petulantly that she would not meet that odious Gloria Kerr. He said nothing until after dinner, then calling Laura aside he ordered her to telephone Mrs. Gilbert and withdraw her refusal. His pocket-book having been hit, Piper was willing to make some sacrifice to determine the reason and what he was to expect in the way of further attack. He kept his mouth closed, and waited.

Laura returned from the luncheon with a favorable opinion of Gloria, but she could not forget her parentage. Upon being questioned she told her father she did not care to put Gloria on her visiting list.

"Suppose I have some one to visit me who asks: 'Who is that girl you introduced me to?'" complained Laura. "And I'll have to say: 'That's Gloria Kerr, the boss' daughter.' Then what will the visiting girl think of Belmont society, and what will she think of me? I'm sure I would be surprised if I went to visit anyone and they introduced me to the son or daughter of a man like Kerr."

"Laura," answered her father, "I think you'd better go down to New York for a couple of months."

And two days later Laura went, after having called when Gloria was not at home. She never knew why her father urged her to do.

Piper felt it would be cheaper to pay the expense of a New York trip than to have his company stand the continuous annoyance by which it could be worried, if what he suspected was true.

When he inquired about coal for the school board the complaint department reported that the secretary had been mollified but hoped it would not happen again. As for the city solicitor, the legal department refrained from asking anything about the track across the street and that official never wrote again.

Old man Piper kept his mouth shut, but he knew he had been taught a lesson.

Kerr was keeping a sharp eye on things, but his hand was suspected rather than seen in any move that was made. As the time for the ball approached, his rheumatism troubled him more and more, and upon the advice of Dr. Hayes he decided to go to Esmeralda Springs to drink the water. Sam Hayes took him down and came back with the comforting report that he was already better. He was not well enough, however, to return for the ball.

The ball given in honor of Miss Gloria Kerr at the Belmont club by Judge and Mrs. Gilbert was a memorable affair. The ballroom was crowded, and Gloria deserved the praise she received from every quarter on her beauty, her cleverness, and her light-hearted temperament. She did not hear the expressions of regret that she was the daughter of David Kerr. The next morning the Belmont Banner had a two-column head over the story, and gave a long list of names preceded by "among those invited were," instead of by the usual "among those present were." There were a number notable by their absence, but there being a large crowd present and she being a stranger, Gloria did not know this. She was too busy with the men to think of what girls were present.
